

METHOD OF PROVIDING
MEDICAL FINANCIAL INFORMATION

5

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and a method for providing patient medical financial information through a networked aggregate medical server are provided. Patient medical financial information may be received at the server. Patient access instructions may be received at the server. An access request for medical financial information may be received at the server from a requestor. Correspondence with the access request and the patient access instructions may be determined. The medical financial information may be formatted into a requestor readable data format that may be integrated into a home accounting or tax software program. A portion of the medical financial information may be sent to the requestor based on the patient access instructions if the access request and the patient instructions correspond.

T.06030 "T.03.02660